U.S. is out of gasoline

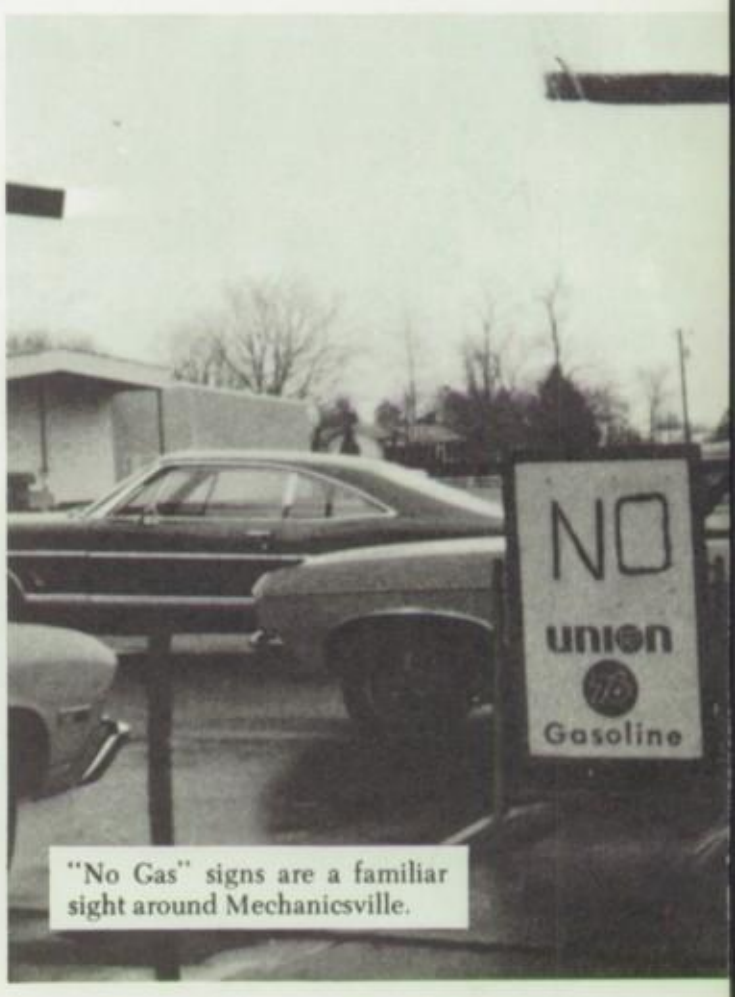
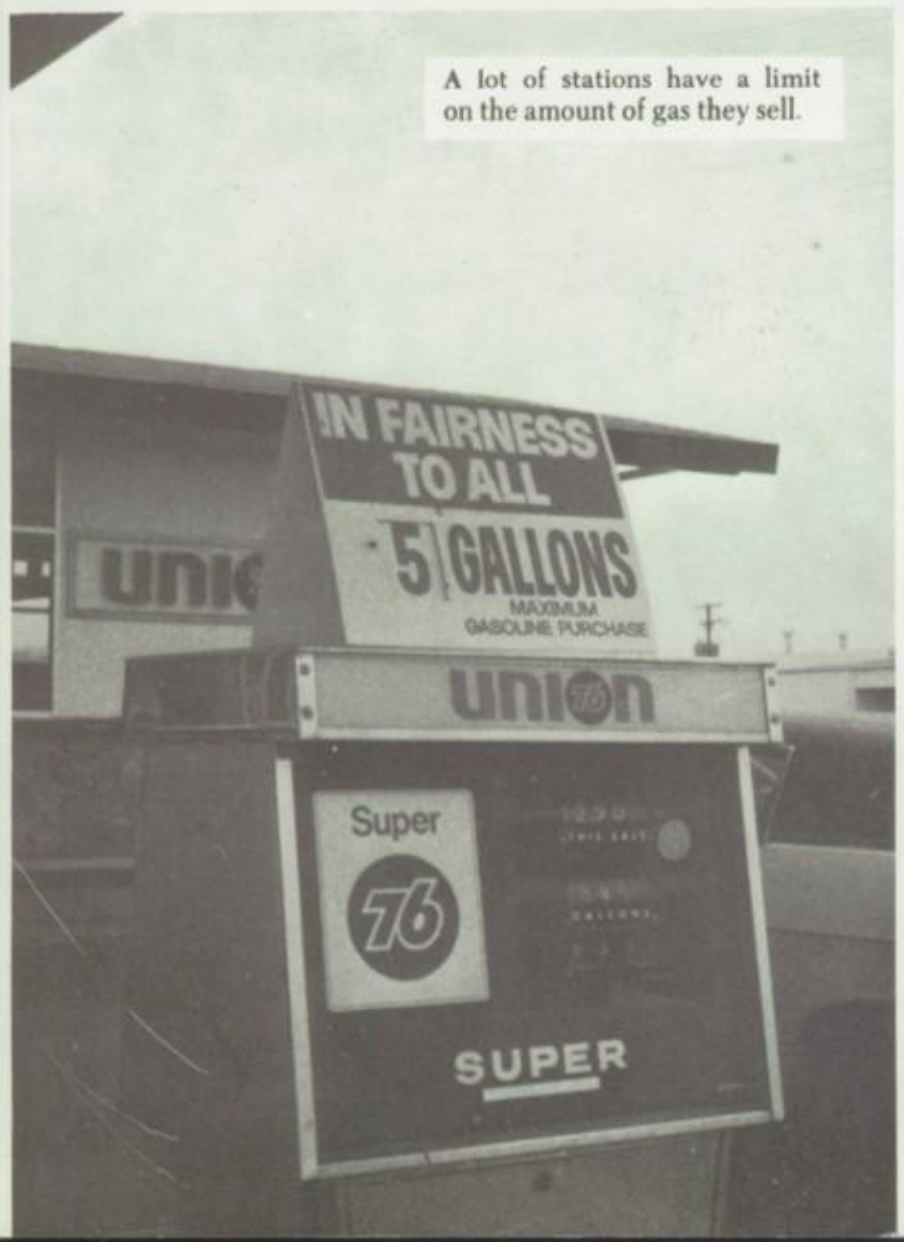
Cars line up to get a minimum amount of gas.



"No Gas" signs are a familiar sight around Mechanicsville.



A lot of stations have a limit on the amount of gas they sell.

Hi! I'm Fred, your friendly, lovable, fuzzy, gray school mouse. I've lived in the annual room ever since my mother abandoned me in 1959 while I was just a mouselet. I lived a quiet life for thirteen years until my annual staff friends invaded my home in 1972. (Some of you may think this is corny, but have you ever stopped to consider that some of your best friends are rats?) The invasion wasn't all bad though; they brought with them tasty cropping pencils and copy sheets. In return, they asked me to tell you all about Lee-Davis, so here goes . . .

One night the annual staff brought in a television so they could watch it while they worked, and I just happened to catch the news. The most prominent news item was the energy crisis. With the war flaring up in Israel again, the Arabs decided not to ship anymore oil to the United States. To help conserve the oil we do have, President Nixon told everyone to set their thermostats back to sixty-eight and to drive no faster than fifty-five miles per hour.

The crisis hit Lee-Davis just like everywhere else. All the thermostats were set on sixty-eight or lower, and on a cold day the students and teachers really bundled up. It got so that I had to wear my woolies and two coats to keep from freezing at night. And to think that they let the students out early at the beginning of school because of the heat!

I have a great aunt who lives in the capitol building in Washington, D.C. She kept me up-to-date on the goings-on with the government. According to her, there was a movement among some congressmen and women to impeach President Nixon. She said the main reason was the Watergate scandal. The main thing that the congresspersons were worried about was the tapes that Nixon made of some of his conversations.

Fred learns of rising prices and politics

The new stoplight at the corner helps alleviate traffic jams.

Something else that astonished me was the resignation of Vice President Agnew. My aunt said that he failed to pay all the income tax he was supposed to. Nixon appointed, and congress approved, Gerald Ford as the new Vice President. I sure hope he remembers to pay his taxes.

Something I heard a lot of people complaining about was high prices. But, even though the cost of living was on the rise this year, people still built places to spend money in Mechanicsville. Two places close by were the new Foodtown store next to Lee-Davis and the Hanover Village shopping center across the street. When leftovers were scarce it was easy for me to go across route 360 to get something to eat. The new stoplight at the corner helped immensely. Do you know what it's like to get your tail runover by a six-ton truck?

The new Foodtown next to LD is a project of the future.

Fashions are confusing

Various feet model the different styles in shoes.

Two drawings display both boys' and girls' fashions.

One thing I didn't really understand this year was the fashions around school. Every day I could walk down the sidewalk and see shoes with soles three inches high and heels five inches high. Then the skirts, or the lack of them, had me confused. Some were up above the girls' knees and some were down around their ankles. Then there were the girls who wore pants. I never knew what was in style and what wasn't. I guess the fashions this year went along with the expression "Do your own thing." I especially enjoyed the guys' fashions. For the first time since I can remember, guys have gotten part of the spotlight in fashions. What other time in history did guys carry shoulder bags?

STUDENT LIFE

Tommy Thompson, Marcia Smith, Phil White, Debbie Hall, Bobby Jenkins, Frances Brittle, and Richard Farmer participate in school spirit day.

When most students heard the word "school", they immediately thought of eternal classes. But students didn't spend all their time in classes. They often had time to themselves during the day. In this time they could talk to a friend, study, or whatever. Being small, I noticed a lot of whatever going on, but anyway there were other aspects of school too. Club activities, practices, and committee meetings took much of the student's time. Some students worked after school. Still others just went home to relax. Me? I was reporting for the annual, so my time was taken trying to keep up with you students.

Amber Kennedy is queen

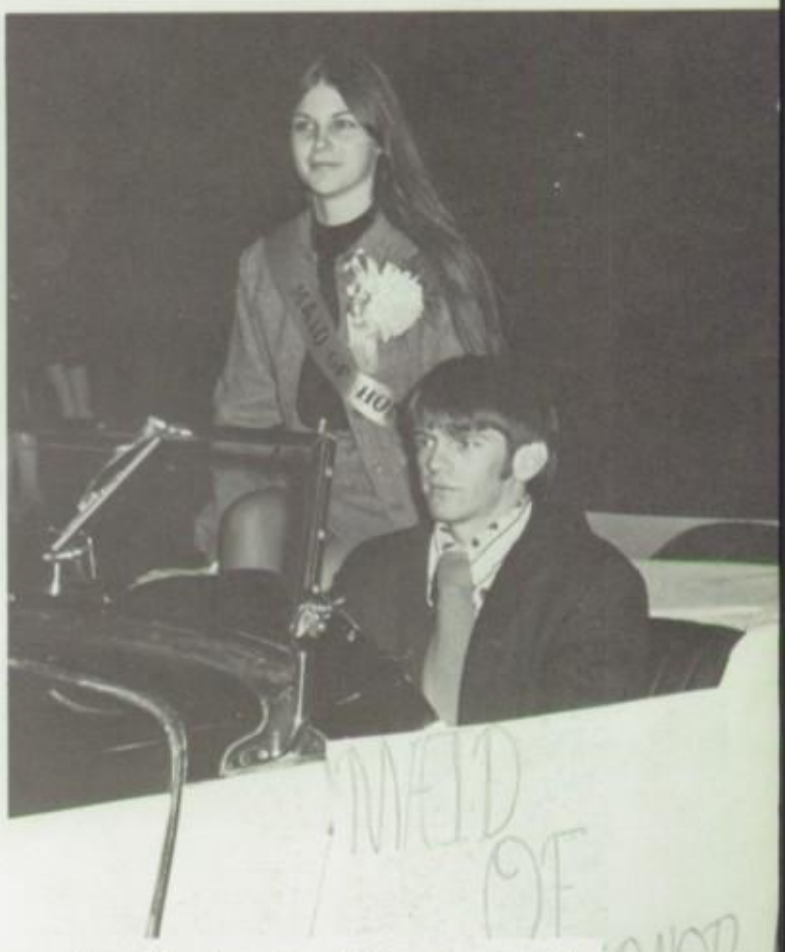
Amber Kennedy rides on the Senior Class Float after being named homecoming queen.

A LD touchdown enthuses the crowd at the homecoming game.

Other candidates for homecoming were Debbie Norment, Dale Taylor, Betty Jo Broske, Betsy Woods, Pam Terrell, Maria Simpkins, Linda Foxwell, Debbie Clark, Bebe Timberlake, Diane Bricker, Connie McGhee.

After being named homecoming princess, Sue McGhee is chauffeured by Mr. Trimmer.



Ray Throckmorton drives the maid-of-honor, Sandy Roberson, in the homecoming parade.

Last year's queen, Debbie Baldwin, crowns Amber Kennedy, the newly elected queen.

Every year around November 1, a very curious thing happens. There is an election of some queen, and classes try to outdo each other in building floats. This year the Junior Class Float came in first place; the Senior Float was a close second; and the AFS Float came right behind them. The sophomores came in fourth, and the SCA came in fifth.

This year somebody named Amber Kennedy was elected queen. Sandy Roberson was elected maid-of-honor and Sue McGhee was elected princess. I bet the males at the game enjoyed it when all the candidates were lined up on the football field.

As for the game itself, those Lee-Davis guys sure played a whale of a game. The almost won, except George Wythe, the opposing team, scored a touchdown in the last minute of the game. I heard someone say that this was the best game Lee-Davis played all year.

With Mike Smithers as a ghost, Bobby Wade as a bulldog, and Terry Cox as a witch, the Junior Class wins the float contest.

Assemblies are cut

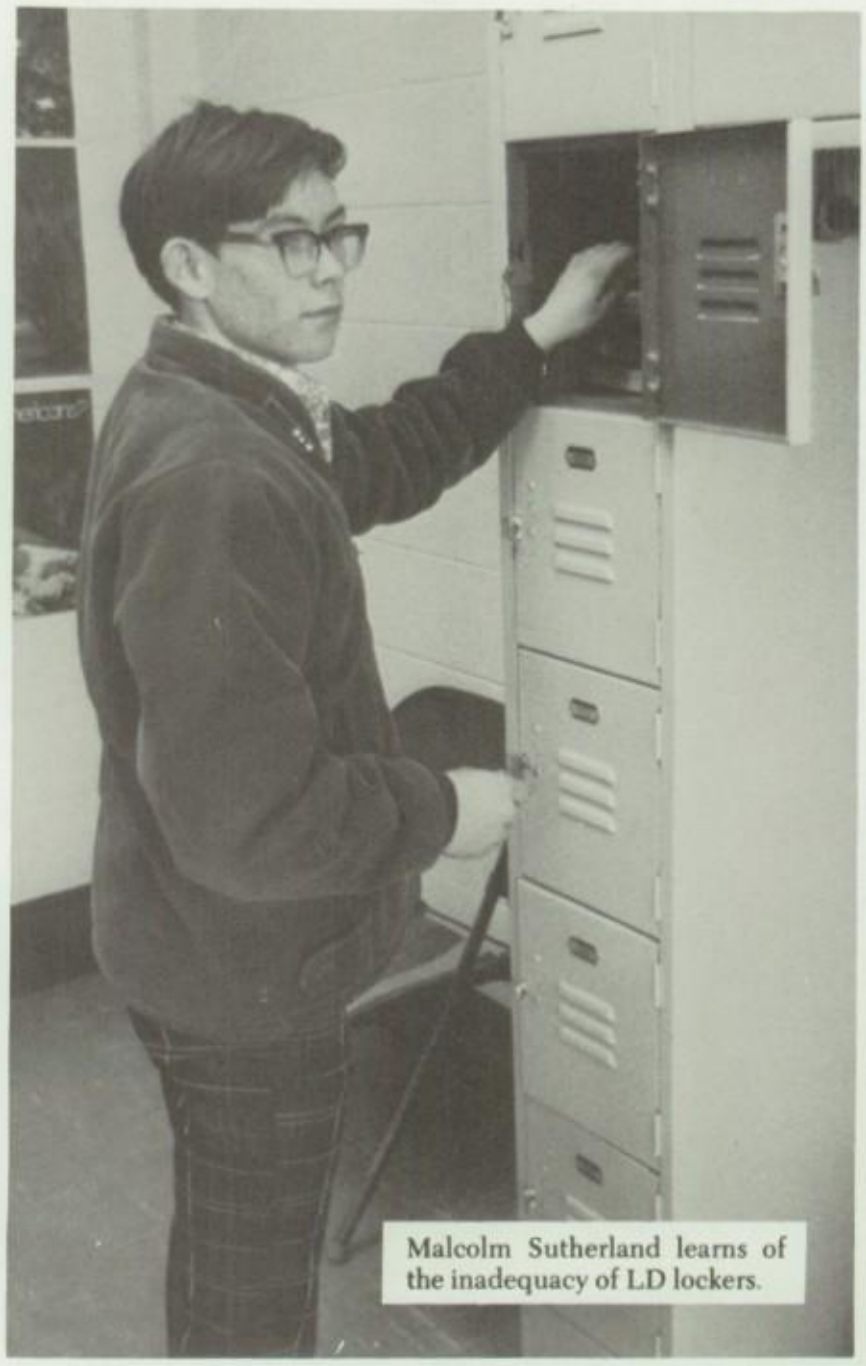
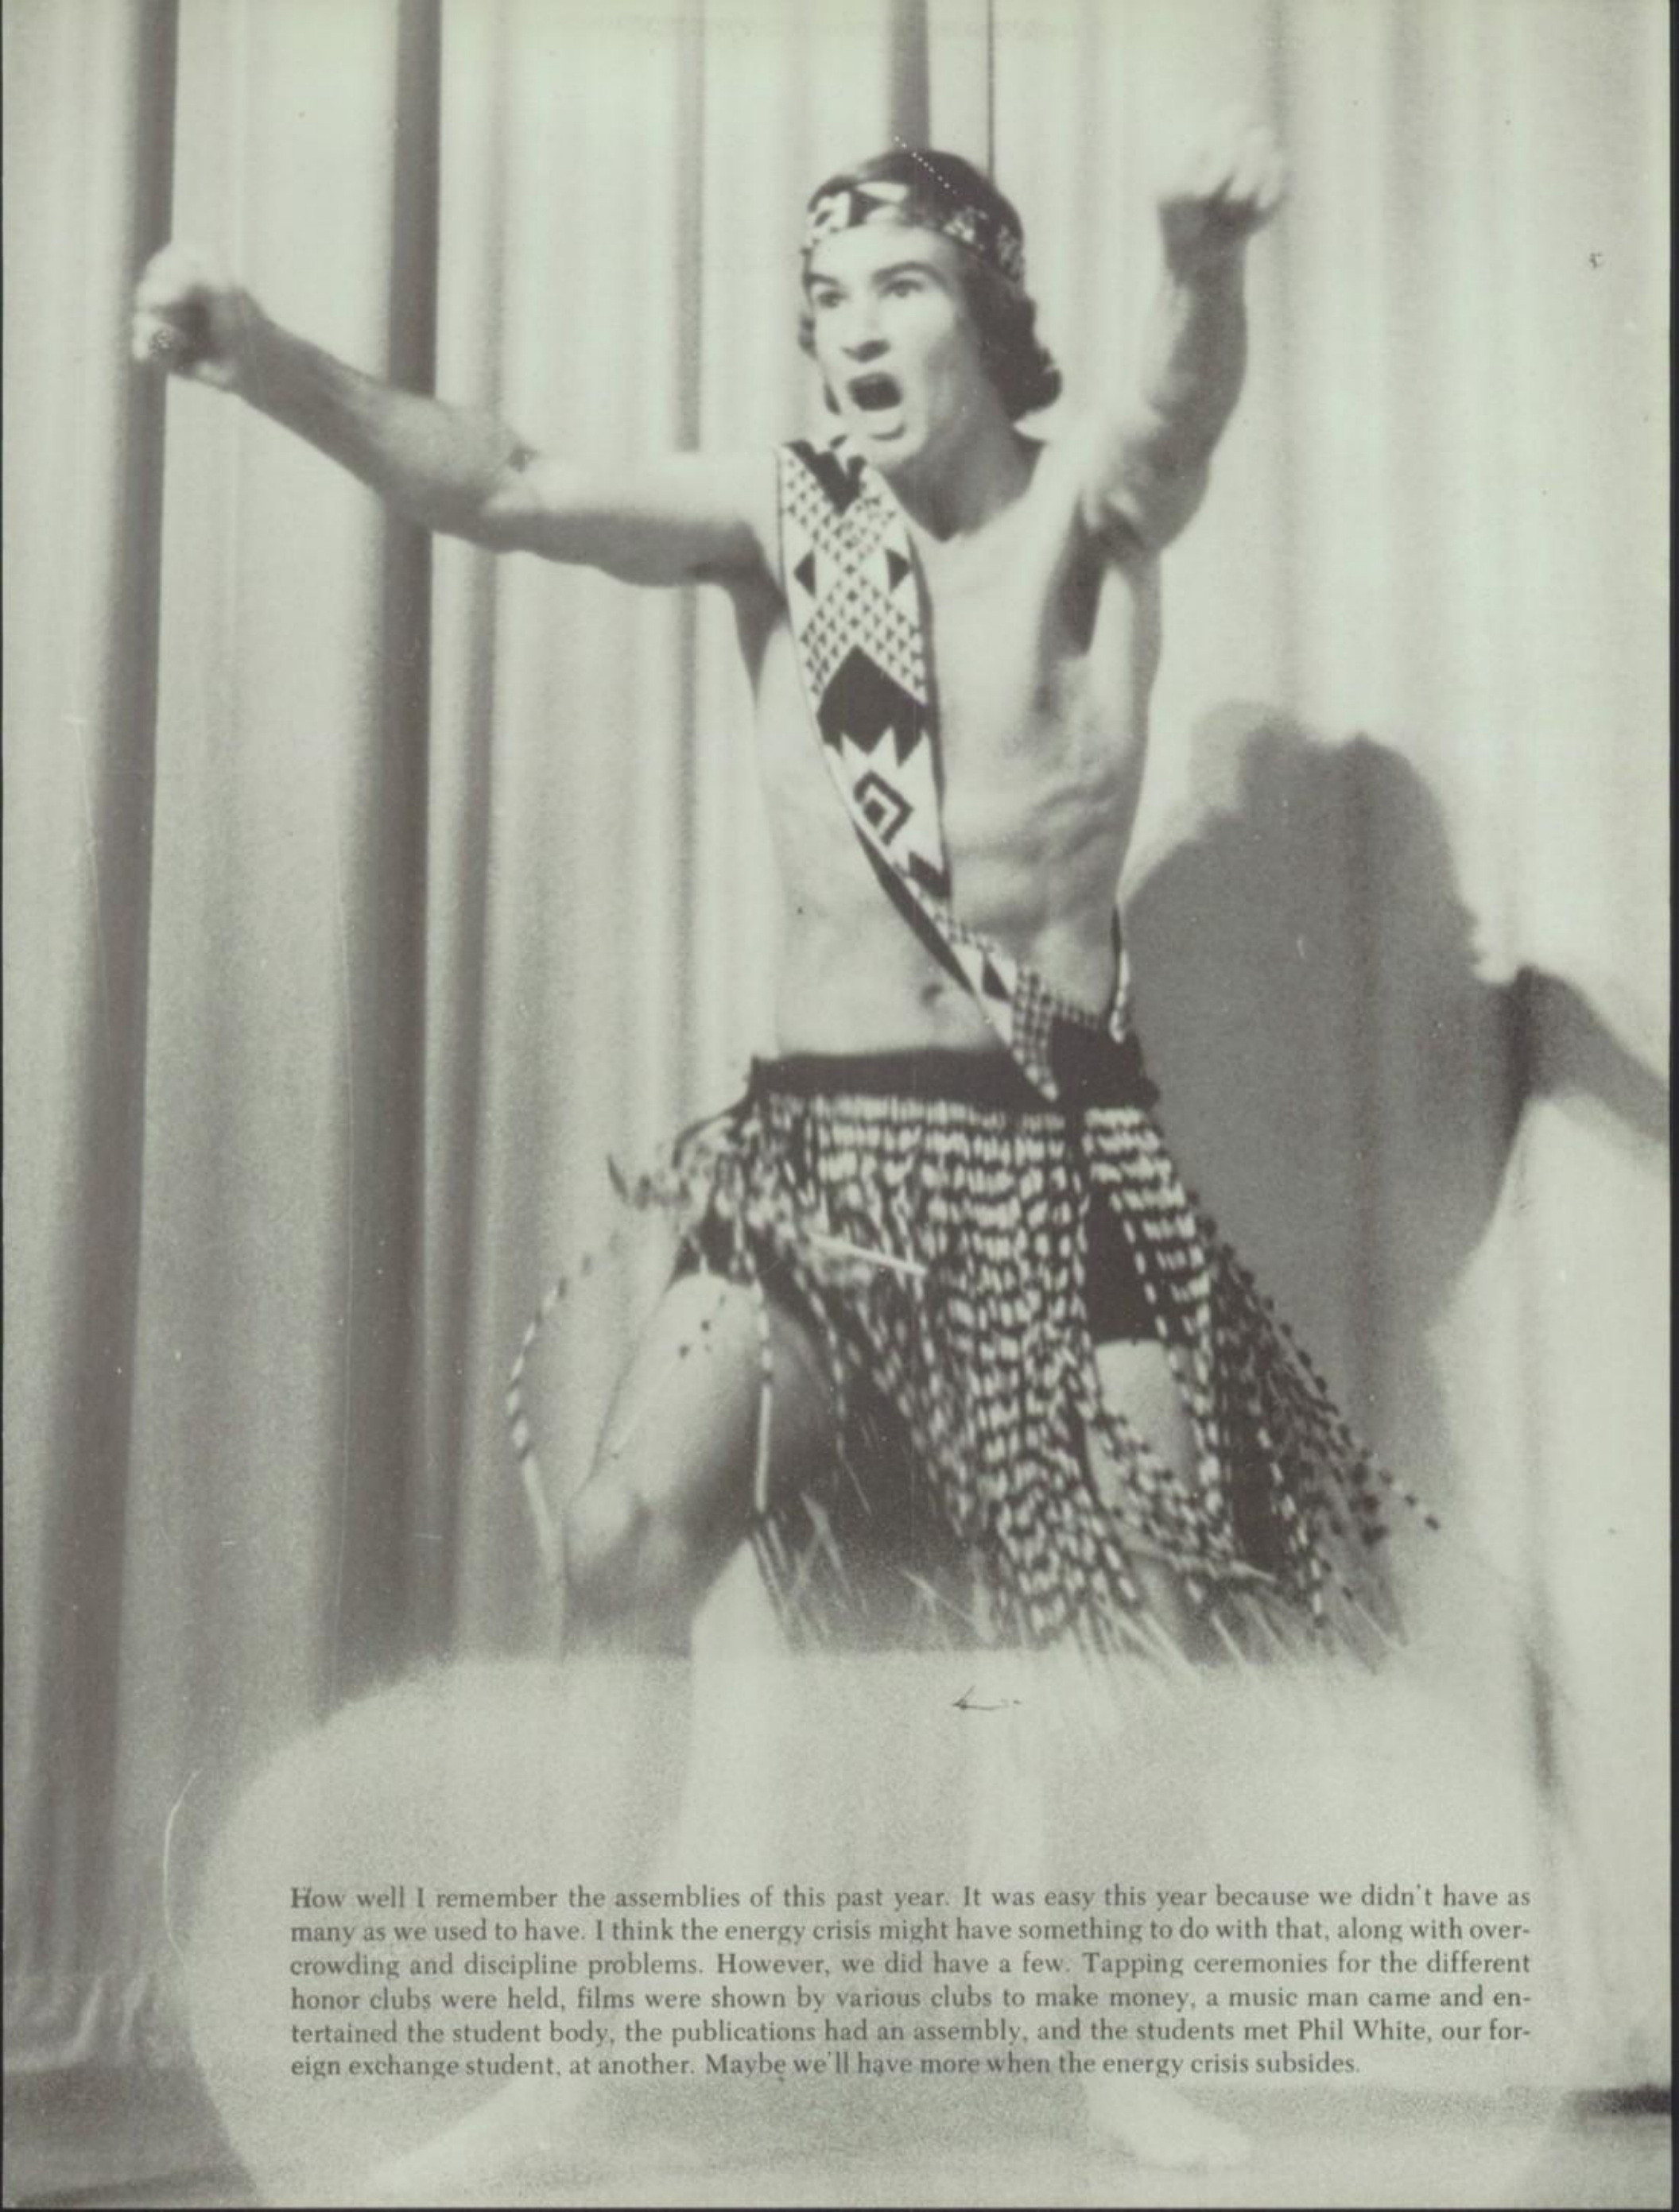
Textbooks get their daily rest at lunch time in front of the cafeteria.



Malcolm Sutherland learns of the inadequacy of LD lockers.

LD students wait in line for a nutritious lunch.



How well I remember the assemblies of this past year. It was easy this year because we didn't have as many as we used to have. I think the energy crisis might have something to do with that, along with overcrowding and discipline problems. However, we did have a few. Tapping ceremonies for the different honor clubs were held, films were shown by various clubs to make money, a music man came and entertained the student body, the publications had an assembly, and the students met Phil White, our foreign exchange student, at another. Maybe we'll have more when the energy crisis subsides.

There was much conversation around school about the various movies people went to see. The more talked about were American Graffiti and The Sting. Several books were also made into movies. The Exorcist, Papillon, The Way We Were, and The Great Gatsby were some of the more popular ones. It sure was a great year for movies and books. I regret not being able to see any of the movies, but I was able to digest some of the books that were left around school.

Books and movies get easier to digest

Steve Kidd, Gary Watson, and Mark Chenault play basketball after school

Accepting lunch money from students is David Pusey.

Energy crunch hurts school activities

It seems to me like there weren't as many functions after school as there used to be. I heard in the office one day that the energy crisis was to blame. I guess student activities were really cut down because they couldn't get enough gas to go places and enough electricity to light and heat the school economically. I heard of many clubs trying to have dances at night or after basketball games, but the only answer they got was that the school had to conserve energy. It sure was a shame, too. I love to dance.

Juanita Allen, Patti Bell, and Mary Jane Norris wait for their ride after school.

Seniors Dorothy Jennings and Beverly Spain find time to wait to see their counselors.

Lee-Davis students wait for their buses.

Miss Borkey, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Jenness, Mr. Slaughter, Mrs. Hollis and Mrs. Turnage walk in procession.

Congratulations to all you seniors. I know it's been a tough twelve years and sometimes you wondered if it would ever end. Now you look back at all the good times and wonder why it must. Still, you've made plans for the future. Some of you were going to college. Others were going right to work. You looked forward to this in hopes that it would be even better. I hope so too. It's been a lot of fun being with you. I hope you'll continue to look back on your high school years and still be glad you had them. Again, congratulations and all the best in the future.

PORTRAITS

This year something happened which was a great loss to us all. Mr. Aylor, who had been our principal for fifteen years, passed away. Even though I am only a mouse, I can understand the sadness everyone felt. I felt it too. He was the only principal I had ever known. I remember his funy announcements, his humor in the office, and most of all his wisdom. Even though Mr. Aylor is no longer with us, his memory will live forever in the hearts of those who knew him.

Principals face tough problems

Occasionally, I feel like embarking on a day of excitement. When I do, I usually go to the office. The ringing of phones, shuffling of paper, and clattering of machines make it one of the noisiest places anywhere. Coming in the back door, when it happens to be open, I quickly pick up the scent of cheese coming from some place up front. Running down the hall, I arrive at three doors. They are open most of the time, so I just run right in. Lots of things are the same in these rooms. All three contain large wooden desks with men seated behind them. The difference is that one man is Mr. Aylor, the principal, and the other two are Mr. Stills and Mr. Crummette, assistant principals. Of all the offices, I like Mr. Crummette's the best because he keeps cookies and cheese crackers in there to supply the food machines-that's the scent I smelled! It's like a Thanksgiving Day feast to get locked in there at night! I was asked to observe, and I saw a lot. Seeing Misters Aylor, Stills, and Crummette answering phones, having conferences, and running the school. I conclude that they have tough jobs. They consider the main problem this year to be lack of communication between themselves and the students. How is it that people can talk all day and still not really communicate?

The office sure is a busy place, people coming and going all the time. But the busiest people of all are the secretaries. All day long Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Talley, Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Bowles are busy writing letters, answering phones, and directing students. Sometimes they leave envelopes out for me to nibble on. Though it must be exciting working in the office, I wouldn't have their job for all the cheese in the world.

Another big thing that has changed at Lee-Davis are these smart people everybody calls a teacher. In my younger days there were only twenty some teachers. Now there's about sixty-eight to worry about getting in the way of. That's not too much of a problem though. All these teachers are so preoccupied with trying to find enough time to get everything done, they don't seem to notice me, thank goodness.

More teachers come to LD

Teachers have few problems

Sometimes when I get tired of sitting in on classes, I go to the teachers' lounge and eavesdrop on the teachers. None of them seem to have much of a problem with the students. Of course, there are always a few students who look down or teachers, who are more interested in getting good grades than in really learning something, and there are some who don't care.

Mr. John King

One of the people I see most around here after everyone else is gone is our janitor, Mr. John King. He scrubs the floors, washes the windows, cleans the bathrooms and does lots of other things to keep the school nice and clean.

Mr. King lives in King William county with his wife and family, and has to drive about 40 miles everyday to and from work. In his spare time Mr. King likes working on his farm. Although he's only been here since January 1973, he thinks the school's a nice place to work.

Mrs. Jackie Wade, Mrs. Carrie Kennedy, Mr. R.B. Norment, Mrs. Margaret Martin, Mrs. Anna P. Custalow, Mrs. Audrey Selden.

Three o'clock is a busy time around here, school's out. That's when I get out of the way if I don't want to get trampled to death.

"Hi, Mrs. Wade," "Hi, Mr. Norment," "How 'ya doing, Mrs. Custalow," those are the sounds you hear out at the bus stop every day when school's over.

The bus drivers are really busy people. They have to get up every morning, bring the kids to school; and, then, they have to be back up here everyday by three o'clock.

Gosh, all that driving, I don't see how they can stand it. Those drivers must be really dedicated to their work.

Mrs. Elizabeth Norment, manager; Mrs. Lou Ellen Kirby, Mrs. Louise Tyler, Mrs. Liesel Pusey, Mrs. Eldeen Smith, Mrs. Roberta Roberts, Mrs. Virginia Crockett.

Early in the morning, I leave the cafeteria to escape being caught by the white-clad workers. They keep me out of the kitchen all day, but I watch them through my hole. They work many hours each morning to prepare lots of food. It seems a waste to watch everybody throw food away while I am so hungry all day in my lookout. At night, though, I creep in and taste some of their good food.

Many duties performed by services.

Helping people is the goal of this year's top seniors

I heard someone say that this year Robyn Strickland was the valedictorian and Sandy Bailey the salutatorian—whatever that means. All I know is they were the two smartest students in the senior class (both had 4+ averages). In fact, Robyn has only made one "B" in high school (imagine all those "A's") and has received many honors. She was a member of the National Honor Society and won the Jacksonian Award for her outstanding citizenship, scholarship, and leadership. She was also included in Who's Who Among High School Students. Sandy Bailey was in the NHS and received the Jacksonian Award, too. But, she was also quite a sportswoman. For two years she was on the Colonial District All-Star Basketball Team and was president of the Girls' Intramural Association. She also spent her summers coaching a summer league girls' basketball team.

Like me, both girls enjoy helping people. So, Robyn plans to attend VCU and become a physical therapist, and Sandy plans to attend Madison College and become a physical education teacher.

Play is a success

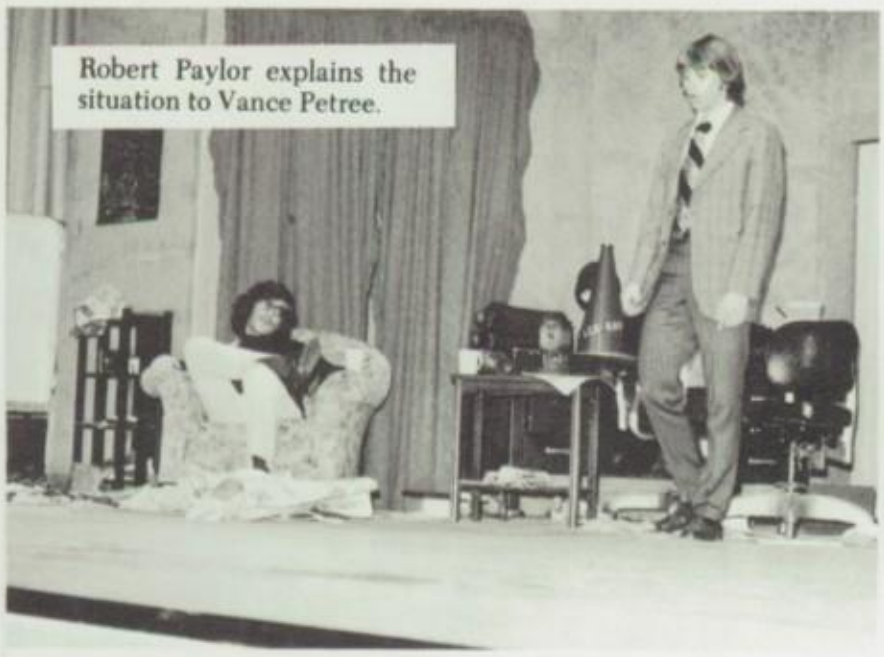
Jenny Foxwell tries to convince Vance Petree to lead a "clean" life.

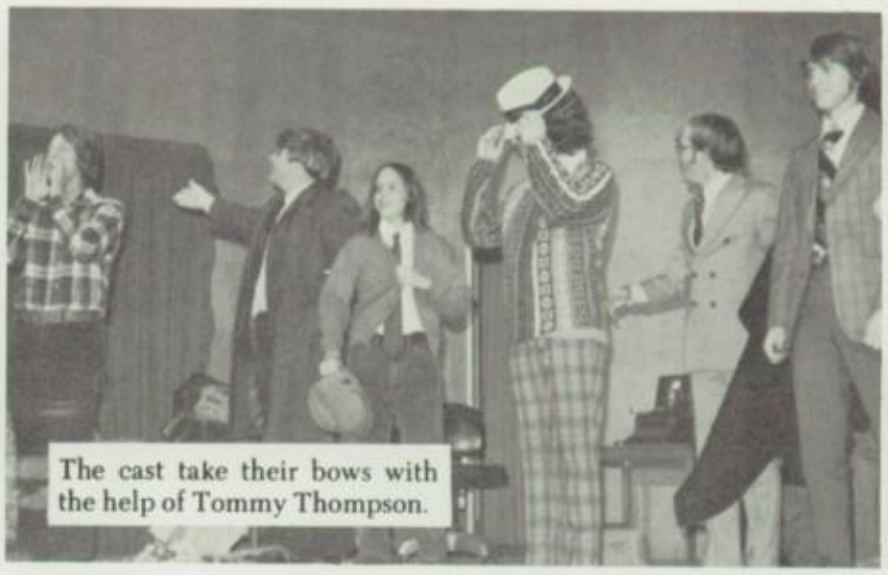
If clowns make you laugh, you should have seen the Senior Class Play. Everybody gave an excellent performance. Vance Petree played the lead role as Murry Burns. Beth Coleman portrayed twelve-year-old Nick Burns. Robert Paylor and Jenny Foxwell were Albert Amundson and Sandra Markowitz. Randy Jordon was cast as Chuckles the Chipmunk, otherwise known as Leo Herman. Wayne Nye was Arnold Burns, Murry's brother.

The story revolved around Murry Burns and his fight to keep Nick from being taken away by the authorities, Arnold Amundson and Sandra Markowitz. As things go in most stories about life, somebody falls in love. In this case it was Sandra and Murry. Sandra interferred with Murry's life by cleaning up his apartment. To Murry this was the last straw. He went to his brother, Arnold, and got his job back with Chuckles the Chipmunk.

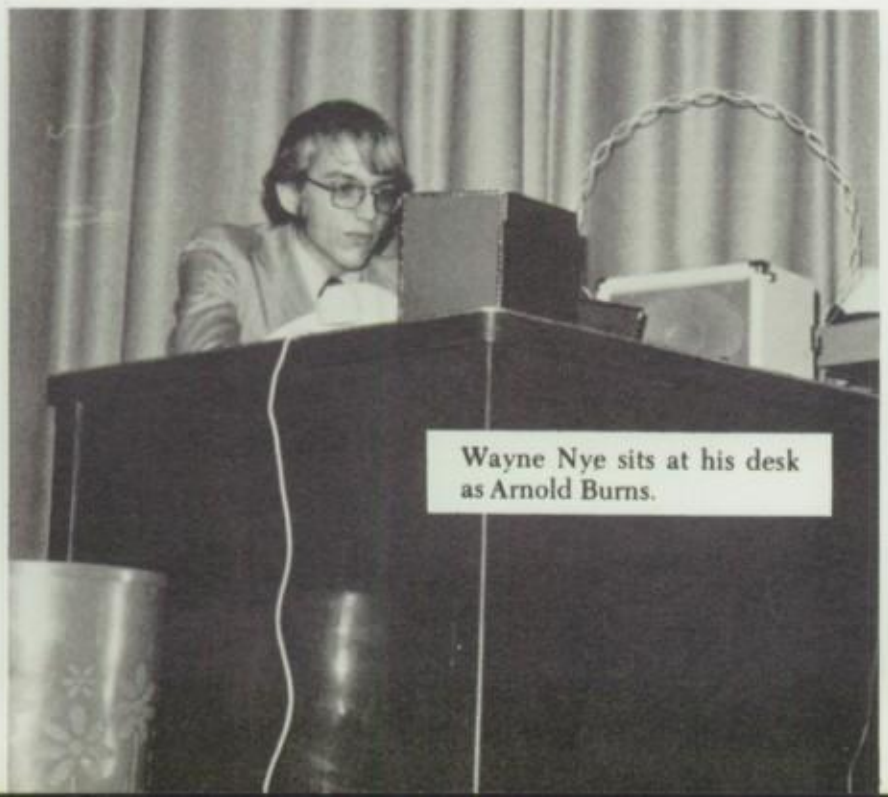
Everyone in Mechanicsville must have known about the play because there certainly were a lot of people there. It's a good thing I got in the auditorium before the crowd started coming. Otherwise, I would have been trampled to death!



Robert Paylor explains the situation to Vance Petree.



The cast take their bows with the help of Tommy Thompson.



Wayne Nye sits at his desk as Arnold Burns.

Randy Jordon shows Beth Coleman how to be "Chuckles."

Seniors choose "Most likely to be Remembered"

From what I understand every year the Senior Class elects the two people they think are most likely to be remembered. This year it was, now what were their names? Oh yes, Phil White and Marcia Smith. Phil, as you recall, was our foreign exchange student this year. Just think, several years from now they'll be the people the seniors remember most.

Class selects "Most Popular"

Billy Croxton and Karen Talley are to be "shot" by two fellow students.

The bad thing about being a school mouse is that I don't have much of a chance to meet other mice and make friends. That's why I could never be elected most popular. In fact, we mice don't even have an election. But the seniors do, and they elected Karen Talley and Billy Croxton as the most popular. Boy, it must be nice to have so many friends.

"Most Studious" is chosen

This year the senior student body chose Vance Petree and Carolyn Bixiones as the most studious students out of that class. I wonder how long you have to study to be chosen. I do know you have to make good grades. But with all that studying they must have to do, how could they miss?

Students vote on superlative

If you could combine all the superlatives together under one category, I suppose you'd get "Best All Around." The two people who were voted "Best All Around" were Amber Kennedy and Bobby Clay. Maybe I could have been elected if I had more talent.

Seniors face decisions

Will I go to college, and where? That was the question many seniors asked themselves. Many times I have been in Mrs. Soyars' office and heard them asking her for advice. Would their grades get them in? Some had no idea what they wanted to do or be. So many decisions, but I don't think I'll ever have to make them. I doubt I'll ever leave high school. Personally, I'm sort of glad.

Seniors are exempt

The inflation of prices and the shortage of money has hurt everybody. Maybe that's why so many of the seniors were working this year. Many were saving their money for college, others for things they wanted to buy. At any rate, they were earning their own money, and I say more power to them.

Class buys diploma covers

Each year, as you know, the Senior Class takes the money they have saved and donates something to the school. This year they have also done something else. They have used some of the money to buy covers for their diplomas. This way the seniors don't have to buy them themselves. I bet they're glad. Graduation costs enough as it is, so every little bit helps!

Dave Lipscombe and Jennie Foxwell prove they have talent.

My modesty forces me to admit that I'm not very talented when it comes to the arts. I got kicked out of singing school at the early age of five. # "Best Dressed" are chosen

I may not have as many clothes as some of the students at Lee-Davis, but at least they're fashionable in the world of mice. Two fashionable seniors were Tommy Thompson and Anita Diacont. That's why they were elected "Best-dressed." But fashions change quickly. You wouldn't believe how many times I've seen some styles come and go. With the way things are going, you can just imagine what's going to be in style next year.

I sure hope they got a better position than being a school mouse.

There were mixed feelings among the seniors this year about their caps and gowns. For the first time, they were to buy—not rent—their caps and gowns. Some thought this was fine, but others wondered what they were going to do with them after they graduated. But they could worry about that after graduation. First, there were other things to think about such as invitations, college applications, and graduation itself. I like to watch the graduation ceremonies, but there are so many things to do that I'm glad I'm not participating.

Seniors lose lounge

At the beginning of the year there was a lot of grumbling from the new seniors. They found out that there wouldn't be any senior lounge this year due to lack of space. It certainly was a shame that I couldn't get anymore of the goodies that they used to leave in there. Where else at Lee-Davis could you have music while you dined?

Problems encountered by Junior Class

It's getting harder and harder to spy on junior classes. With so many people in each class, the chances of my getting caught are great. Why, just the other day I was in one of Mrs. Irby's physical education classes when a girl spotted me. She screamed and threw a giant basketball at me. I was lucky to get away with only minor damage to my tail.

The Junior Class has other problems besides being large. I heard Mrs. Sale comment that occasional apathy was a problem with students. With a little effort on the part of the students, the problem should be solved easily.

One of the big problems that faces the juniors is making a decision about what to do after high school. Some know exactly what they're going to do after graduation, while others are unsure. I'm glad that I live in a high school and don't have to leave. Mr. King would probably disagree, though.

The janitor locked me up in the auditorium one night. The next afternoon some man named Gene Justice came and played all kinds of musical instruments. The floats for Homecoming this year were as enormous as any I've ever seen at LD. This year the juniors won the contest with a slogan of "Brew Bulldogs". The competition was stiff, but the juniors pulled through to win. It's a wonder to me where those students find the time to work on floats with so many other things to do at the same time.

The talk around school that I heard was that the juniors started in early October planning the prom for April. How much truth there is in that, I don't know. All I know is the juniors had planned to have everything all laid out ahead of time. They even decided to have the prom away from school, but due to safety and money reasons the plan was vetoed.

Sophomores become true Confederates

I don't know why it is, but every year around the last of August or the first of September I seem to see hundreds of new faces here at LD. Every year, since I've been here, this number has increased steadily, so that this year there are about 410 new faces. At the beginning of the year, it's so much fun to watch the perplexed looks on the newcomer's faces as they try to find their way around LD.

You have to admit, though, that making the transition from junior high to high school is sometimes hard. During the first days of school, when we had that hot spell, you couldn't blame them for missing the air-conditioning they had at Stonewall. Just wait until it gets cold this winter too. Then they are really going to miss the warm, enclosed building they had at the junior high. Other things I hear them say they miss are the large cafeteria and locker rooms.

Pretty soon, however, these sophomores settle right in. They become absorbed in the life at LD. They become involved in clubs and sports. Before they know it, they are no longer "Stonewall punks" but true LD Confederates with the same problems and hopes all the other Confederates have.

One subject I hear being discussed by a lot of sophomores is something called a smoking lounge. Most of the ones I hear talking are "for it." Some of them smoke themselves. Others are for it because they want to get all the smokers out of the bathroom. While they don't really condone smoking, they would rather have a smoking lounge for those who do smoke rather than fight the smoke.

Clapping her hands at a pep rally, Susan Samuels helps spur her team to victory.

This year at LD there's a new rule that has the sophomores grumbling. Now they can't drive to school because the parking lot is being overly crowded with student cars. Of course this rule doesn't apply to most sophomores because they can't drive anyway. They aren't eligible for their license yet! But there are a few who have their license and even more who have their learner's permit. They feel that this new restriction is unfair and that they should be able to drive to school like juniors and seniors.

The rising cost of school lunches is something that has hurt all of us, including me. They've really become stingy with those crumbs in the kitchen. Lunches have jumped from 40¢ to 45¢, but what sophomores don't like is the price jump in milk. Instead of the unusal 5¢, milk is now 10¢. Now they can only buy one milk instead of two.

One of the biggest problems sophomores have, as a class, is not that of finding their way around a new school, but that of raising money for the next year's prom. That's all they talk about at class meetings. Sometimes it really gets boring. But you have to admit they're really coming along with their class dues of $1.00 per person. When the year had hardly begun they had already collected over $300, which took care of over half the entire class. If they keep up this rate, they won't have too many problems raising money for the prom.

National problems discussed by sophomores

Watergate . . . Nixon . . . Cox . . . That's all I ever hear in the sophomore classes. They have their opinion too, I guess. Should Nixon be impeached? How relevant are the Watergate tapes? What effect will the firing of Cox have on the nation? Like many humans, I'm getting tired of hearing it all. Thank goodness the only time I hear it from most sophomores is in class. They feel that, while it does make for a good excuse to use class time, there are better things to discuss outside the class.

I hear the sophomores are really spirited this year. There's no doubt that they yell loudly at pep rallies. But they really showed their enthusiasm when it came to the Sophomore Class Float. There were twenty to twenty-five students that helped on the float, which is more than most other floats had. But even more impressive is the fact that they actually cleaned up after they finished the float.

The curriculum at LD has really grown. Over the years so many new courses have been added that now a student can take just about anything. Of course, there have always been some subjects which were required. Then there have been some courses that the student has needed for college or a job. And there have always been some left over for the student to take if he wants. Seniors only had to take a few subjects and come half a day, if they wanted to. They could also be exempt from exams if their grades were high enough. No wonder each student lives for the day he's a senior.

ACADEMICS

Language classes are confusing

Why anyone would have wanted to learn another language is beyond me. Sometimes, it's all I can do to master my own. Yet almost every student at LD has taken at least one foreign language. Latin for the intellectual crowd; French for the lovers; and Spanish for those wishing excitement. There were also some students who considered English a foreign language, too. Everybody had to take that. As for me, I don't want any. When I visited the foreign language classes and listened to all that mumbo jumbo, I was thoroughly reassured that mouse talk is the only language for me.

Mouse visits labs

Chemistry students study for a big test.

There were a variety of science classes at LD. Biology, chemistry, and physics were all anybody could take, and probably want, in three years time. Just listening to all those phylums, formulas, and laws made me dizzy. I'm sure I would want no more. But sometimes, after everybody left, I went into the labs and goofed around. In the chemistry labs, for instance, I pretended I was a mad scientist mouse. Actually, it was a wonder I didn't blow the place up. But I didn't, and I guess as long as I'm careful there'll continue to be science classes and labs at LD.

Fred attends math classes

1+1=2, 2+2=4, 3+3=7? No? Oh well, I may not be ready for the calculus class yet, but I'm learning. However, I did sit in on some of the various math classes, just to catch a few pointers. I could really sympathize with those poor students struggling through Algebra I. Geometry didn't seem so hard once you got all those theorems down. Algebra II was a lot of fun. They kept talking about some guy named "Little Harry." (He was the imaginary boy that Mrs. Payne uses to explain problems). He sure is a weird kid. Actually, Algebra II is as far as I have gone and still understood it. Can't you tell? But there were other math classes that were offered such as Trigonometry and Calculus, but they were too confusing. Just you wait. I'll get there someday. Maybe by then I will have learned what 3+3 is. Hey, what is it anyway?

P.E. classes take advantage of gym

Another good thing about being a high school mouse is that there is never a lack of exercise. When it was too cold to go outside and run around, I would go in the gym and exercise with the P.E. classes. I had to be careful so that no one saw me. I also had to watch out for flying feet and hands. But I stuck in there and did my exercises. How else do you think I keep so slim and trim?

A club meeting in the library is attended by Steve Estes and Dale Blankenship.

For the past several years, the number of clubs at Lee-Davis has been growing. So has the number of students. It was getting so that each student was joining so many clubs that he couldn't participate fully in any of them. So this year the block system was introduced. The clubs were divided into groups or blocks. Each student was allowed to join only one club in each group. It worked out rather well. Each student had to choose the clubs they wanted to join instead of joining them all.

SCA still tries for lounge

SCA duties find Randy Jordan, SCA president, addressing LD assemblies.

I guess the SCA is about the most important organization in the school. It is trying to achieve many things for the school, such as the selling of chocolate milk, more and better assemblies, the fixing of water fountains, and a smoking lounge. Though they haven't always been successful, they have worked hard for the school.

Isn't it nice when people can work together to achieve something worthwhile? That's what's so great about the ICC. The clubs work together for the improvement of the school. On October 10, several clubs got together and cleaned up the school grounds. Some clubs also gave Gatorade to the football team. Their over-all policy is "if we see the need for something to be done we try to do it".

NHS attends convention

President Karen Lett assists Cindy Hayden with a chemistry problem.

I hear that the Beta Club and the National Honor Society did a lot of things together. The main thing they did was offer a tutoring service. That's what I need. I wonder if I would get one of those pretty girls to teach me if I applied. Another thing they did together was to make a Christmas basket in cooperation with the SCA. The basket went to a needy family in the area.

The Beta Club, by itself, played a volleyball game with the AFS to help the AFS raise money. In the spring and fall they held tapping ceremonies and installed new members.

The NHS gave a contribution to the library, sent members to the spring convention, and held a tapping ceremony in the spring. I wonder how these students find time to study with so much to do.

The Quill and Scroll is the club I really should have been tapped for, since I have worked so hard on this annual. After all, they did have two ceremonies, and they could've tapped me at one of them. For the first time in Lee-Davis history sophomores were eligible to be tapped. Maybe next year mice will be eligible.

Inter-act plants pine trees

To be on the Debate Team you have to be able to argue with facts to back you up. Then, hopefully, they went to the district, regional, and state competitions. They also attended summer institutes in debate.

Now comes the part I know most about. Since I lived in the annual room, I'm practically an expert on the subject of annuals. It was really a lot of work. There were ads to sell and a theme to think up before anything else could be done. Then there were pictures to take, layouts to draw, copy to write, and pictures to identify. All this just to meet a silly deadline. They stayed here so late one night I almost didn't get any sleep at all. Once the annual was printed, they handed it out to all the people who bought them in the fall. Then it was time to start worrying about next year's annual.

Putting out a newspaper must be almost as hard as putting out an annual. Deadlines, finances, and layouts were some of the staff s problems. It was sent to the Herald-Progress office to be printed and was published eight times a year. They exchanged newspapers with other schools, in and out of state. Some of the staff and one of the sponsors attended a newspaper conference at University of Richmond.

I understand the FHA's most important project this year was "Living for all You're Worth." They intended to work on this program by using members, needy families, less fortunate children, and the community. Things they have done this year included preparing Thanksgiving dessert for a local nursing home and a basket for a family at Christmas.

Members of the rescue squad demonstrate first aid technique.

The Future Medics Club wasn't very big, but it sure was busy. They had two people working at Richmond Memorial Hospital every Thursday afternoon after school and on Saturdays. Some of their club members also worked at the Crippled Children's Hospital. They planned a Christmas program at Richmond Memorial too. In the spring, they planned to give a program for the veterans at McGuire Hospital. They always had first aid teams on call and planned to add to these teams by holding a first aid class in the spring. It sure is good to know that if I get sick there'll be someone around who knows what to do.

FTA gives Christmas tea

Beverly Spain looks up during her typing lesson.

Isn't it amazing that some people liked school enough that they chose a career that involved coming to school nearly every day? That's what the members of the FTA plan to do. For now, though, they've set up a student-teacher aid program and have given a Christmas tea for the teachers. They also fixed a Christmas basket to take to a home. On January 26, three FTA representatives and Miss Mason attended the state FTA convention in Roanoke.

One day I got to listen in on a FBLA meeting. Boy! Did I find out a lot! For the fourth year the chapter became a gold seal chapter. This past summer one member, Debbie Crump, attended the national FBLA conference in Washington. In the fall, the future business leaders attended two conferences at VCU and a state conference at Roanoke. The club planned to tour businesses all through the year. To raise money, they sold candy. They were also involved in lots of charity work.

Another busy club I know of was the Distributive Education Club. They were forever planning something. Some of their activities have been a candy sale, a fashion show, a Thanksgiving basket, an employer-employee banquet and district, state, and national contests. They've also had guest speakers, films, projects, and discussions. All of their activities were to enable them to become "better citizens, better employees, and better consumers."

For the first time the language clubs were grouped together into one great big club. With so many members in the club, it was dangerous for me to sit in on the meetings because of all those feet! Every year the AFS raises money to bring a foreign exchange student to LD. The AFS had planned several events this year to boost their treasury so they can continue this tradition. In March, they planned a talent show; in December, they played the Beta Club in volleyball; and after Christmas, they planned to sponsor a sockhop.

From what I gather from the talk around school, the foreign exchange student this year is Phil White. The students met him at an assembly in October. At the assembly, Phil jumped out of the curtains dressed in a native costume and did a New Zealand dance. When he finished, he explained that he was only acting. Last summer Beverly Spain was an exchange student to Costa Rica. The candidates to go abroad this year are Jackie Sheffield and Alan Paschall.

When I first heard about the Fine Arts Club, I thought it was going to be made up of a bunch of stuffy people who never have any fun. But they do all sorts of neat things. At the first of the year, they had a picnic at Hanover Wayside with lots of food. Later, they went to see "Two Gentlemen of Verona" at the VCU Theater and hoped to attend several more plays. They also gave a Christmas play and a Christmas party. I wonder if they would like to have as a member a mouse who is interested in the Fine Arts.

The Library Media Club beautifies the library

I wish I could read. Then I would read all the books in the library and would join the Library Media Club. Members gave thirty-six hours per week of their time as library assistants. They sponsored teas to introduce new materials to the faculty and students. Their main goal this year was to beautify the library. Maybe they'll even let me help with something.

Camera Club teaches elements of photography

It seems like taking pictures would be so easy; but, from what I heard from the Camera Club, it's not. There are many things which must be done before the picture can be snapped, such as adjusting the camera and deciding on the right angle from which to take the picture. The Camera Club instructed its members on these and other elements of photography. They also aided the school publications in their photography needs. Maybe, if they have a mouse-sized camera, I could help too.

Chess seemed so hard to me, but many people enjoyed the game. The members of the Chess club enjoyed it so much, and got so good at it, that they would have liked to hold an inter-club chess tournament. # GIA sells soft drinks

Did you ever wonder where all those soft drinks at the basketball games came from? Well, I know. The GIA sold the drinks. They used the money to give a senior GIA member a college scholarship. In the spring they presented a program to the student body. The club's main purpose is to sponsor the girls' intramural sports.

I love tennis! That's why I hope the Pep Club reached their goal this year. They wanted to have new tennis courts put in at LD. In order to do so, they were going to have to have money-making projects. They were considering selling shakers that were left over from last year. I hope they got enough money to have the tennis courts built. Who knows? If I practice real hard, I might become the Bobby Riggs of mice.

Chorus performs at churches

This year the chorus performed at several churches in the area, sang special musicals here at school, sang a concert with the band at Christmas, and had a spring concert. As a money making project, they sold candy bars. I sure am glad they can sing better than I can!

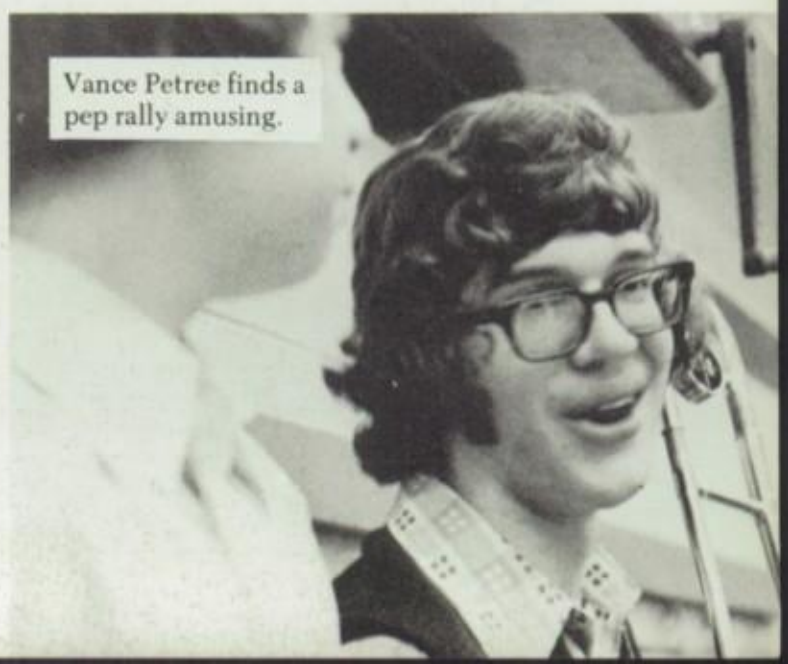
Most people saw the band only in the fall at football games, but I saw them do much more. After football season, the band played a Christmas concert and went to the band festival competition. In the spring they marched in various parades.

The Band Club had more money in its treasury than ever before. They really needed it because they were planning to buy a stereo for the band room. Doug Key, the president, mentioned something about changing the color of the band award jackets to orange.



Vance Petree finds a pep rally amusing.

One of the many duties of the Flag Team is to perform at pep rallies.

"I hear the band playing, I see the flags waving . . ." Hey! That's the flag team! I know them! They're the girls who practiced two weeks before school started, performed with the band, and presented the colors at the home varsity basketball games.

Rah! Rah! Rah! I love to cheer along with the cheerleaders. I only wished I could have gone to more games to cheer. The cheerleaders were so lucky. They went to all the football and basketball games. But that wasn't all they did. They planned pep rallies, picnics, and banquets. There was something different about the varsity cheerleaders this year though. They had two boys on the squad. Hmmm. I wonder if they could use a very school spirited mouse.

Cheerleaders support teams

JV Cheerleaders try their hand at construction.

The JV Cheerleaders worked just as hard as the Varsity Cheerleaders. They gave their support to the JV, Varsity and B-Team Football Squads and to the JV and Girls' Basketball Team. With the money they made from selling doughnuts, they have helped give banquets and picnics for the teams. I think LD is lucky to have such dedicated cheerleaders.

I like watching the majorettes perform, but I hold my breath everytime they throw that little stick up. Thank goodness they hardly ever drop it. Like the drill team, they attend home football games. This year they also attended the Patrick Henry away game. They went to the University of Virginia on Band day too. As a fund raising project, they sold tumblers. To tell you the truth I'm glad I don't have to twirl one of those things. It could be really dangerous.

I really was kept busy this year with all the different athletic events. First it was football, girls' basketball, and cross-country; then, it was basketball and a new sport called soccer. Later, it was baseball and track. That new game soccer was so exciting. They certainly did a good job moving that ball without using their hands. If it were me, I'd use my tail. Mr. Satterfield was the coach of the team. He had a rough job. A lot of the boys on the team had never played soccer before, and their first game was thirteen days after the first practice. This may be the beginning of a new tradition at LD.

When August comes around, I know it's time for football practice to begin. Drilling, throwing, hitting help achieve perfection. Each game this year was played with spirit and determination to compile a 4-5-1 record. On offense, Henry Rollins, Ricky Schuder, and Donnie Hanback gained the most yardage. Bobby Jenkins, Charles Whitlock, Kenny Rohle, Billy Croxton and Bernie Longest led in tackling, while Bobby Jenkins led in fumble recoveries and Clint Chalkley in interceptions. The best defensive game was against Prince George in which the Confederates overcame a 13-0 deficit to win 14-13. Offensively, the best game was against Hermitage, in which the team gained 348 yards although they tied at 13-13.

I've been going to the girls' basketball games for a long time and never have I seen such talent and skill exhibited on the court. The girl cagers seemed to overwhelm their Colonial District rivals with their superior teamwork. A victory over Henrico on October 30 clinched the District championship for the team. An unfortunate loss to Douglas Freeman earlier in the season gave the girls an overall 11-1 record. At the Colonial District Tournament the basketball team was the runner-up.

Basketball! Now there is an exciting sport. I am pretty good at it too, if I do say so myself. I'm sure I could have made the team, but the balls were just a little too big for me to handle. Surprisingly enough, though, the team had a pretty good season even without my expert skills. At not quite the end of the season Elwood Allen had a total of 339 points and averaged 18.8 points per game. He had 79 offensive rebounds and 80 defensive ones. How's that for statistics?! David Ellington scored a total of 119 points and averaged 6.6 points Charlie Cox was another good player. He totaled 264 points and averaged 17.6 points. Kenny Blaylock did better on the rebounds. He had 50 offensive and 74 defensive ones. Marty Jewell had 16 offensive rebounds and 26 defensive. Ray Throckmorton, another good shooter, scored 104 points and averaged 7.4 points. Other players that helped to make the team successful were Terry Hackett, Allen Broaddus, Steve Newton, and Bryan Hieskill. It makes you wonder, though. If they did that well without me, just think what they could have done with me.

JV's meet Highland Springs in tournament

Lee-Davis had the best junior varsity team they've had in a long time. Their regular season record was twelve wins and seven losses. Jeff Sherman was the leading scorer. He averaged 19.8 points per game. The leading rebounder was Kenny Lowry with 10 rebounds per game. Leading the team in assists was Greg Gregory. The four team captains were Ernest Cosby, Billy Garthright, Jeff Sherman, and Greg Gregory. In the four-way tie for second place in the district, our JV team beat out the other three. They almost won the district championship too, just losing by a score of 60 to 57. Even though they didn't win, they gained a lot of valuable experience. It really gave me a thrill to think we almost won the tournament championship at both the varsity and junior varsity levels.

Being pretty good in some of the track events, I really should have gone out for the team. But there was already such a good turnout that I didn't think I would have a chance. And besides, they did pretty well without me. Their best event was pole vaulting. Charlie Cox participated in that. He also participated in the high-jump. The distance men were Bobby Wade and Jeff Wade. Alan Broaddus was a sprinter and Stanley Kapinos a hurdler. Two seniors that they really depended on were Ricky Witherow and Charlie Cox. In cross-country track, the co-captains were Bobby Wade and Jimmy Miller. The two best runners were Dick Murphy and Erich Cosby. Oh well, even if I didn't get to participate in any of the events (they would have probably considered me too small anyway), I did get to cheer them on. That was probably just as well because who wants to be all out of breath?

"Take me out to the ball game." Although I don't get out very often, I love baseball; and Lee-Davis' team gave me a chance to see some fine ball playing. The pitching of Jim Fraley; the defense of Scott Spiers, Aubrey Brown, and Allen Broaddus; combined with the effort of the whole team and the improved hitting of the team, made exciting games. Some of the LD's toughest competitors were Henrico, Highland Springs, and Douglas Freeman. It was a shame somebody didn't sell peanuts and cracker jacks.

I suppose the reason for having a JV baseball team is to give the players the experience they need to play on the varsity team. Anyway, that was the goal of this year's JV team. The team's strongest point, like that of the varsity team, was defense. It's comforting to think that the future of LD baseball is in good hands.

Girl's Track

For the first time this year at LD there was an organized girl's track team with uniforms and all. Their goal was to qualify as many girls as possible in the state meet. Last year at the state meet Gail Kelley, Janet Jefferson, Carol Morrison, and Sandy Bailey won fourth place in the 440 relay. So, naturally, this year they were considered the nucleus of the team. Since this was their first year competing, they had no idea who their toughest competitor would be. But, according to Coach Irby, they were not weak in anything, so I guess they had nothing to worry about anyway. They did know, however, that their toughest meet would be the district meet. They had to qualify there in order to go on to higher competition. LD may have a good girl's track team, but just think of the kind of mice team we could have. Why we mice get a work out every day just trying to stay out of everybody's way.

Denise Dunkum tries to get Mrs. Mitchell to buy an ad in the annual.

Ads have always been a vital part of an annual because they provide the money needed to publish the annual; however, some people have tended to overlook them. I hope nobody overlooked the ones in this annual because more were sold this year by the Confederate staff than ever before. The staff also came up with a few new layout designs so the ads wouldn't seem so monotonous. They even did something different with the patrons. I hope the ad section didn't seem too boring. I certainly enjoyed looking at all the different designs.

Warm weather brings temporary solution

Well, winter didn't last forever, though for a while it seemed it might. Spring finally came. With it came warm weather—thank goodness. Then we didn't have to worry about having enough heating oil. Maybe warm weather was only a temporary solution to the shortage of heating oil, but it gave scientists a whole year to think of a better one. Maybe by that time they will have thought of a new idea.

Lion Country Safari opens

I know you've all head about the amusement park that's coming to Hanover County. Well part of it, Lion Country Safari, is now open to visitors. It was designed so the visitor can drive his car through it and see live African animals. One day I was fortunate enough to be hiding in a car that drove through Lion Country Safari. You wouldn't believe how many animals I saw. It was a little scary for me, being so small, to see such large wild animals. I liked the petting zoo, where you could pet baby animals, and the nursery which housed many types of newborn babies. I also saw some gift shops and restaurants. I liked the restaurants best of all. I can't wait 'til the rest of King's Dominion opens. A gigantic replica of the Eiffel Tower will overlook International Street. There will be the Happy Land of Hanna-Barbara, an Old Virginia area, and live entertainment. They will have restaurants, motel accommodations, and a camp ground. I see that I could never get through it in one day, so I guess I'll have to test those motel accommodations. Maybe I'll see you there.

The Mechanicsville community has grown so much. It seemed like everytime you turned around this year a new housing development was springing up; several new businesses also came to the Mechanicsville area. There was a new bank, a new furniture store, and even a new pet shop. Closer to home, workers have been redoing the road that runs by Lee-Davis; and, as I have already mentioned, there is the new stoplight in front of the school. Yes, Hanover County is changing. Lee-Davis is part of that change, and I for one am proud to be part of Lee-Davis.

End of year is reached

LD seniors make a good impression at pep rallies.

. . . Well, I guess that was it, such as it was. Really, though, it's been a pretty good year. We had many adventures together, even though you probably didn't know I was with you. I am also glad I had a chance to talk with you. I've learned a lot about students, and I hope you learned a little about mice. You see, we're not such horrible creatures after all. We just like to have a little fun. (yawn). But I talk too much (for those of you who haven't already figured that out). It's been nice visiting with you, but all good things have to end sometime. So long. Maybe you'll see me around next year.

The annual staff wishes to extend special thanks to the following people who helped immensely to make this annual a success: Dorothy Jennings, the creator of Fred; Mr. Neill Watson III, who came and took pictures for us; Rex Gibson Studios, who also took pictures; Johnnie Raymer, for his help to the identification staff; Mrs. Walsh, for her all around help; and Fred, the narrator of this annual.
